AN AWARD WINNING PORTFOLIO.

THE LOCH LOMOND GROUP IS AN INDEPENDENT DISTILLER AND BLENDER OF
SOME OF THE FINEST AND RAREST SCOTCH WHISKIES IN THE WORLD.

Our heritage is some of the oldest in the industry dating back to 1772 with the founding of Littlemill- Scotland's oldest licenced distillery.

In 1814 , the original site of the Loch Lomond Distillery was established near Tarbet towards the north-west of Loch Lomond. In 1832, the Glen Scotia distillery was founded in Campbeltown and is only one of three remaining in Campbeltown from that era.

Today, our portfolio includes a full range of award winning Loch Lomond single malts. In addition, our Glen Scotia portfolio has a range of single malts which have received international acclaim and has expanded to include 18 and 25 year old single malts all in the classic Campbeltown style.

2021 also sees the latest release from the vaults of Littlemill - The Testament 1772 release will be a highly prized single malt with a limited edition of only 250 bottles.

Alongside our whisky portfolio we have also recognised growth in the gin market which saw us successfully launch Ben Lomond Gin in 2019. Inspired by the majesty and beauty of Ben Lomond it is a traditional London dry-style gin with the addition of hand-picked Scottish berries.

Our growing presence in markets around the world has continued to expand though our partnership with the R&A and The Open Golf championship. Our sponsorship of the oldest golf championship in the world together with sponsorship of the Woman's British Open demonstrates our ongoing commitment to becoming a premium global spirits brand.

NEW BRAND PRESENTATION

AUTUMN 2020 SEES THE REFRESH
AND LAUNCH OF THE FULL LOCH LOMOND
WHISKIES SINGLE MALT RANGE.

From the entry level Loch Lomond Original right through to the Loch Lomond 30 Year Old, the all new packaging and individual bottle presentation will reflect bold fresh and uniform styling which will give greater prominence to the Loch Lomond brand name. This will allow for all products to sit comfortably under the Loch Lomond brand name and offer a strong stand-out presence at point of sale.

Our Island Collection ranges of Inchmurrin and Inchmoan are now featured as part of the Loch Lomond range with reference made to them on the packaging of the two twelve year olds.

In all we will have 10 single malts to bring to market. These are featured on the following pages.

“ This is an exciting time in the ongoing development of Loch Lomond Whiskies as we continually refine and improve our product offering. This new Single Malt range will allow us to further strengthen our proposition and expand our sales opportunities in emerging marketplaces around the world. ”

LOCH LOMOND: FROM ILLICIT STILLS IN BOTHIES AND BARNs TO THE GREAT BONDED WAREHOUSES OF THE INDUSTRIAL AGE, THIS PART OF SCOTLAND HAS PLAYED A KEY ROLE IN THE STORY OF WHISKY.

‘DISCOVER THE SPIRIT WITHIN’

The Loch Lomond distillery can trace its roots back to the Littlemill distillery, which was established in 1772 and is the oldest licensed Scotch whisky distillery in the world. Since 1814 Loch Lomond Distillery has been distilling and crafting the finest single malt whisky. Whiskies which are as beautifully delicious as the landscape is stunning. Its current malt and grain distilleries, in Alexandria, Dunbartonshire close to the banks of Loch Lomond, were commissioned in 1964 with first distillation in 1966.

When it opened, Loch Lomond distillery's groundbreaking straight necked stills were a revelation, enabling production of a lighter, fruitier spirit and greater control over the whisky's character. It is among only four distilleries in the Scotch whisky industry to maintain an onsite cooperage which makes and maintains 20,000 casks annually.

Today the distillery's still formation remains unique within the industry and incorporates a total of 13 stills including:

- Three pairs of straight-neck stills
- One pair of traditional swan-neck stills
- One continuous Coffey malt still
- Two pairs of continuous Coffey grain stills

The use of different stills, different strains of yeast and extra-long fermentation of at least 96 hours together create an unrivalled palette of spirits, enabling Master Blender Michael Henry to achieve an astonishing variety of single malts - each displaying the underlying fruit character for which the distillery is renowned.

Remarkably, the distillery produces three different 12-Year-Old Single Malts from the light and fruity Inchmurrin to the heavily peated Inchmoan. In between them is the Loch Lomond 12 Year Old Single Malt which recently won Double Gold at the San Francisco World Spirits Competition and was named Best Scotch at the 2019 Bartenders' Brand Awards.

The extended Loch Lomond core range from entry level to the new 30 year old single malt ensures our award winning portfolio has a single malt at all major price points, as well offering a range of flavour profiles from light and fruity to heavily peated.

OPEN SPECIAL EDITION

Bearing COLIN MONTGOMERIE'S Signature

Created in partnership with Colin Montgomerie, our Loch Lomond Whiskies ambassador.

Colin Montgomerie, has won eight European Tour Order of Merit titles, including a streak of seven consecutively from 1993 to 1999. He has won 31 European Tour events, placing him fourth on the all-time list of golfers.

This Special Edition is a combination of spirits from both our unique straight neck and more traditional pot stills and has been selected to deliver an approachable single malt of exceptional quality. As with all of our Single Malts the underlying fruit character of the distillery shines with a gentle hint of smoke on the finish.

TASTING NOTE

The vibrant palette of peach and pear is enhanced by using specially selected spirit distilled from our wine yeast fermentations. Creamy vanilla oak and maple syrup adding a background sweetness before subtle peat smoke emerges giving a balance to the finish.

OPEN COURSE COLLECTION

Bearing DARREN CLARKE'S Signature

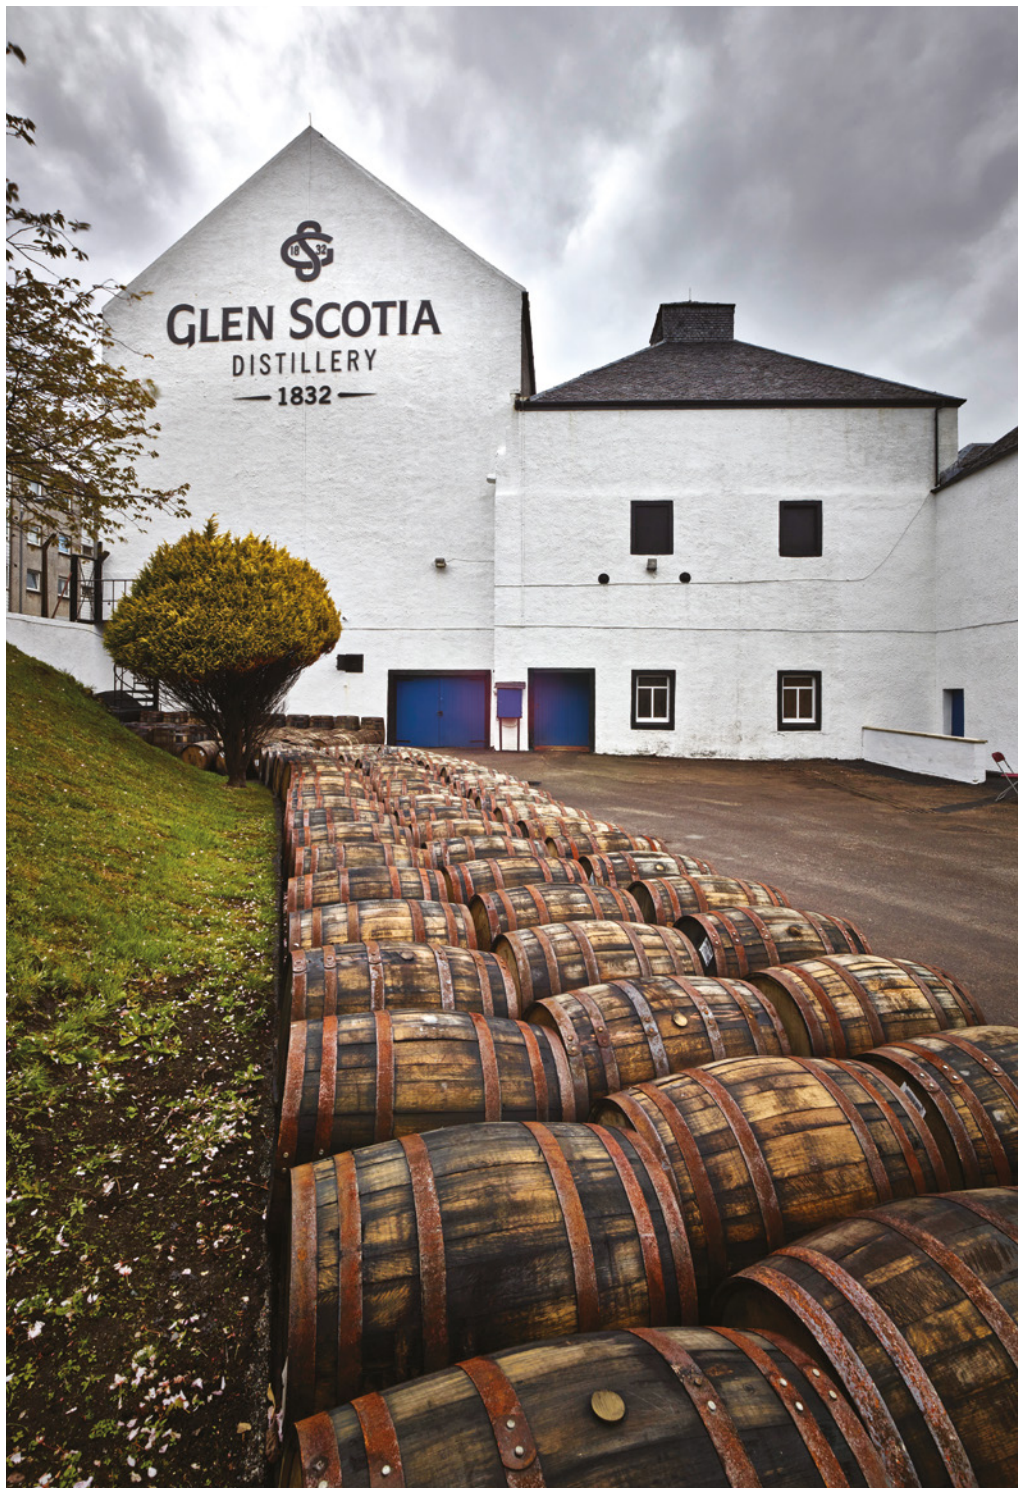

LOCH LOMOND 20 YEAR OLD SINGLE MALT SCOTCH WHISKY

Darren Clarke has won 21 tournaments worldwide on a number of golf's main tours including his biggest victory in 2011, at Royal St George's. Darren has been working with Loch Lomond Whiskies Master Blender Michael Henry to create the Open Course Collection Royal St Georges, a 20-year-old single malt. Michael's choice of casks - specially commissioned English Virgin Oak, brings out fruit character created by our innovative stills.

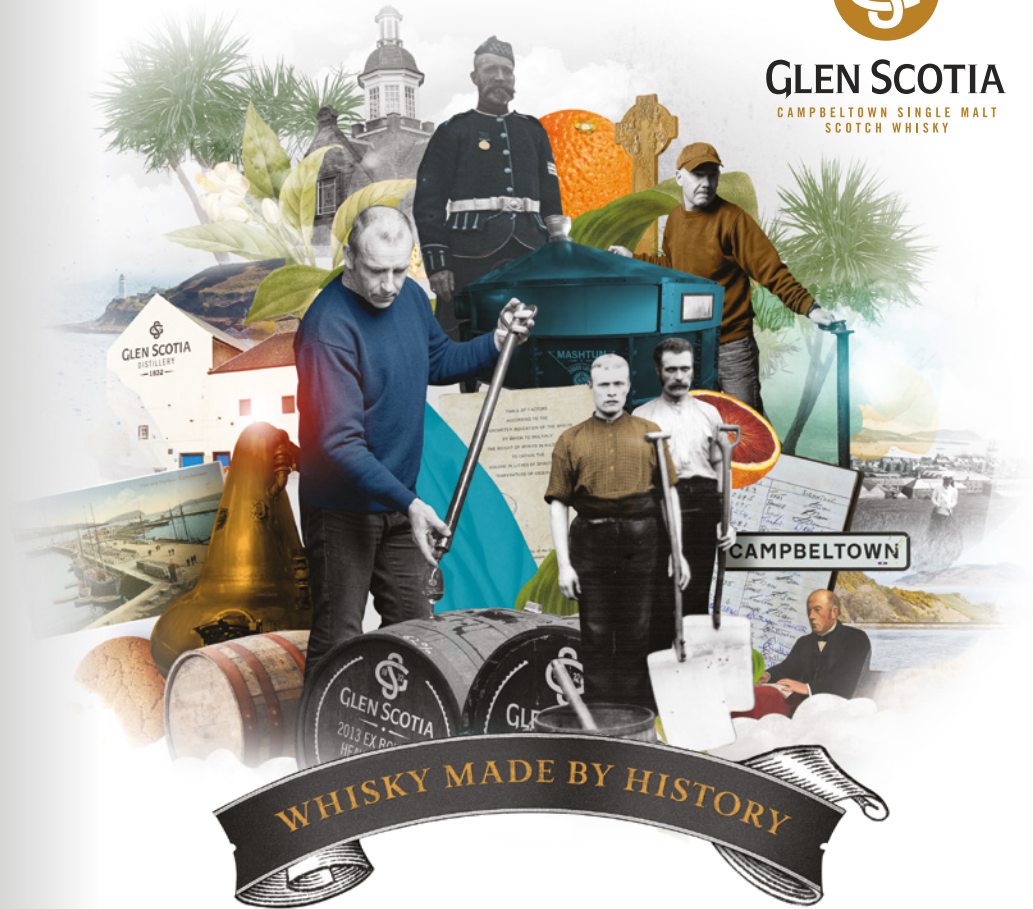

TASTING NOTE

A limited-edition single malt with spiced apple, elderflower and a vanilla on the nose. The palate opens with a caramel sweetness, green apple and honeydew melon then toasted oak and clove of spice before a dry, lingering finish of lime citrus, cumin and ginger.

GLEN SCOTIA
 CAMPBELTOWN SINGLE MALT
 SCOTCH WHISKY

Whisky from the Whiskiest Place.

Campbeltown may be the smallest whisky region, but it's certainly the whiskiest.

For there was a time when whisky virtually coursed through the streets of the town.

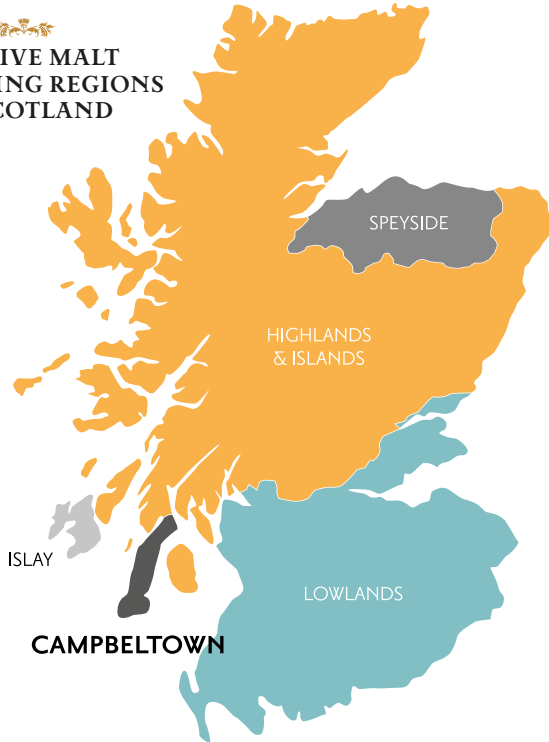

With a distillery on every corner, nigh on every inhabitant involved in its creation and boats queuing in the port to carry off casks, it was known as the whisky capital of the world. Down through the years, all that knowledge, experience, craft and whisky passion has been distilled into Glen Scotia, an exquisite example of the classic, maritime Campbeltown style.

So when you pour a dram of Glen Scotia, it's more than whisky in the glass.

◆ THE DISTILLERY ◆
CAMPBELTOWN

THE FIVE MALT
 PRODUCING REGIONS OF SCOTLAND

Towards the southern end of the Mull of Kintyre, Campbeltown is an isolated, distinctive place.

The whisky produced here is special too - so much so that it's classified as a separate region, quite apart from the Highland, Speyside, Lowland and Islay whiskies which are perhaps better known today. Distilling was probably going on in Kintyre for centuries, but the written legal history begins in 1609 with the granting of a licence to produce 'aqua vitae' to a John Boyle of Kelburn. With an excellent water supply, easy access to peat and grain and a growing market in Victorian Britain and beyond, little Campbeltown had 28 distilleries by 1851, and proudly proclaimed itself 'the whisky capital of the world'.

Today only three distilleries remain, of which ours, Glen Scotia, is one of the smallest in Scotland.

Founded in 1832 as Scotia, our distillery survived a decline in the industry in the early part of the 20th century, although it was silent between 1928 and 1933, when it was acquired by Block Brothers.

The 'Glen' was added to the name in 1939, and the distillery was bought by the Canadian spirits giant Hiram Walker in 1954. Glen Scotia changed hands again several times before it was bought by Loch Lomond Distillery Company in 1996.

The Mull of Kintyre peninsula is known, of course, for 'mist rolling in from the sea', and Campbeltown whiskies are characterised by a distinctive, salty tang. Glen Scotia had been producing Single Malt in the time honoured manner and is a fine example of this historic style - and your first dram is likely to be a singular pleasure and remain long in the memory.

Glen Scotia Double Cask is matured in first fill bourbon barrels followed by time in Pedro Ximenez sherry casks. This is an outstanding malt whisky with a very formidable pedigree.

TASTING NOTES

NOSE Amber. Very sweet. Initially it is all creme caramel, caramelised fruit sugars, wood sugar, toffee and fudge before some apple and peach come through.

PALATE Sweet start, quite fat and though the alcohol gives a little tongue-tingling buzz the result is a good mid-palate weight.

FINISH Deep and dark.

Littlemill
1772

THE FINAL LEGACY OF SCOTLAND'S OLDEST DISTILLERY

THE JOURNEY BEGINS

In the 15th century, beer was a staple drink for many Scots, with the brewery on the grounds of Auchentorlie supplying amongst others, the monks of nearby Paisley Abbey. Archibald & George Buchanan however, had their eye on making something infinitely more complex and significantly more valuable.

History tells us they went on to do so in some measure and with very great success, establishing Scotland's first and oldest licensed whisky distillery in 1772.

That same year accommodation was also built next door to the distillery to house the Excise Officers who represented the law - and ensured any distillation was duly recorded and relevant taxes calculated. This suggests that something was already afoot onsite some time before 1772 (indeed in a less than official capacity, the brewery which was attached to Dunglass Castle nearby, may well have been distilling liquor as early as the 14th century).

2ND DAY
NOVEMBER
1773

After one year, on the 2nd of November 1773, local Justice of the Peace records for Dumbarton show that 'Robert Muir of Littlemiln', an employee, was granted the first ever licence by the Government of King George III to "...retail ale, beer and other excisable Liquors."

For over 220 years the date stone on the gable end of one of the warehouses on which was carved '1772' remained firmly and proudly in place, until in 1994, the distillery closed and the stills of Littlemill finally fell silent. Three years later the distillery was largely dismantled.

CELESTIAL EDITION
Aged 40 Years

The Celestial Edition has been matured in American oak and first fill bourbon barrels before a brief 3 month finish in Oloroso sherry. It is the oldest Littlemill release to date, distilled on 11th October 1977 and brings an excellent balance of both distillery character and wood influence.

2017 PRIVATE RELEASE
Aged 27 Years

For the 2017 Littlemill Private Release, our master blender Michael Henry selected 8 casks from 1990 as an homage to the true Littlemill distillery character: a lighter, floral spirit, reminiscent of the triple distillation of the Duncan Thomas era. He chose the casks with the strongest floral character and subtle wood notes from distillations between the 11th and 29th of May 1990.

2017 PRIVATE RELEASE
Aged 25 Years

A selection of 10 casks from 1989 and 1990, these casks have been chosen as representations of the quality and style of the Littlemill Distillery. Married together before a period of finishing in 1st fill Oloroso sherry casks, these 1500 bottles offer the opportunity to taste heritage in a glass.

Ben Lomond Gin has been inspired by the majesty and beauty of Ben Lomond, as well as the extensive natural flora within Loch Lomond & The Trossachs.

We are excited to announce that we have now expanded our range to include two new Infused Scottish Gins, Blackberry & Gooseberry and Raspberry & Elderflower. Much like our classic Ben Lomond Gin, these flavours were inspired by the extensive flora surrounding Ben Lomond and throughout the Loch Lomond and the Trossachs area. They have been developed with the assistance of a local forager who helped us find the perfect flavour pairings to match our classic London-dry style gin, complimenting the hand picked blackcurrants and foraged rowan berries used during our distillation.
